Boxed booze that's good

Wine by the box has come a long way since Franzia, our college fave. We sip-tested the latest; here's what we'll be pouring at our shindigs. —A.W.

Brilliant for picnics, the Govino glass is shatterproof. $13 for a four-pack; GovinoWine.com

Cab Sauvignon
Having pasta? Try Bota Box's medium-bodied pour; impress guests by pointing out the cherry and plum flavors. $20; BotaBox.com

Red blend
Earthy and a bit spicy, Domaine Le Garrigon Côtes du Rhône goes well with savory fare—even good old pizza. $45; Wineberry.com for stores

Pinot Grigio
Some who sample The Big Green Box will notice green apple and lemon; the rest will just say "Delish!" Great with citrus dishes. $20; find at beverage chains
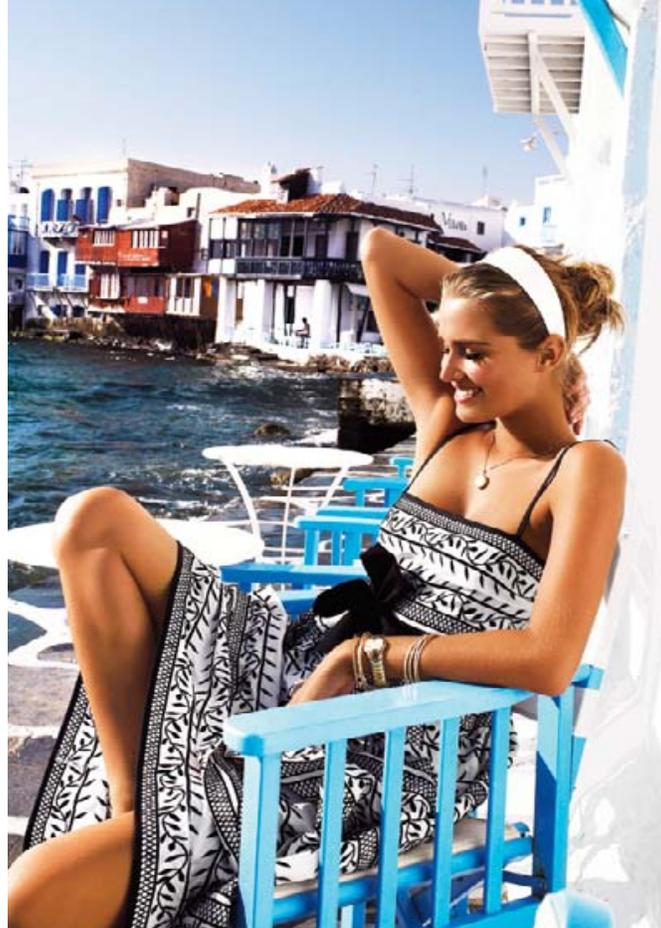

Moscato
FishEye is a light-bodied sweet wine, best downed during dessert. Enjoy with sorbet—or skip the eats and double up on drink. $18; UDWS.com

Chardonnay
The mild fruitiness of From the Tank Vin Blanc complements light bites such as salads and fish. $36; FromTheTank.com

NICE SKIN, ALL YOURS

Get limed, baby: The acid in the fruit's juice sloughs off dry patches. Try this exfoliant from aesthetician Nina Patino of Paul Labrecque Salon & Spa in New York City.

Make the scrub (easiest recipe ever)

PREP IT

Juice of 2 limes
½   cup brown sugar
4   tbsp coconut oil

STIR IT In a small bowl, whisk juice and sugar until free of lumps. Add oil 1 tbsp at a time to thicken.

SMEAR IT In the shower, apply all over your body in small circles, then rinse and slip on a sundress. (You'll want to show off that skin.)

—Runa Bhattacharya

BE *SELF*Y THIS MONTH

Gawk at supermodel glitz and glamour in the documentary About Face (July 30, HBO).

National Lazy Day is August 10. Celebrate by not doing a single productive thing.

Buy a tray of Project 7 Feed the Hungry mints and a person or family in need will get seven meals. August 25 is National Kiss and Make Up Day, so they may come in handy!